TO ESCAPE RESPONSIBILITY.

The protest from the Democratic minority is simply to escape from responsibility. It is simply an attempt to hide away from whatever may result from the approaching election. the assessor and parties subject to assessment | The Republican party knows the responsibility which it assumes. It realized it in State convention, when it pledged itself to submit this question to the people. It realized it when, in two cancuses, as described by the Senator from Bucks, it pledged Senators and Representatives to vote for this proposition. It realizes it now, not knowing what the result will be, not interested in what the result will be either as | cases when from one to three blocks remain interested in what the result will be either as Senator or Representative, but interested alike with all other citizens, holding different views, some voting for, some voting against. The responsibility does not, Mr. President, go so far as that, save as it applies to individuals. The official responsibility, the thing which comes through our duty as Senators and Representatives, stops when we meet the demand of the people, and the judgment of the people is sufficiently responsible for itself.

The Senator can, with rare sarcasm and eloquence, point to the power of the little finger

The Senator can, with rare sarcasm and eloquence, point to the power of the little finger of the man distant in Florida. He was simply the first of the people and of the leaders of the State to recognize that the machinery of the party ought to be applied to carrying out the wishes of the people, and the machinery of the Republican party has been devoted, and wisely devoted, to this purpose. Pray, will the Senator from Bucks tell me what great parties are for unless it is to carry out the wishes of the people. They are great political organizations, pushed to their purpose through voluntary forms so closely allied to the legal forms that they are Republican in shape and make-up, and the whole purpose of the people is, to carry out the wishes of the people. We are but doing this.

NO LACK OF COURAGE.

NO LACK OF COURAGE.

I need not go into the action of the Demo-cratic party in Congress when the Morrison and the Mills tariff bills were submitted, and when all the representatives of that party, without any demand from the people, were pledged to vote for the measure. The action was final. Here we are simply pledged to sub-mit the question to the people and the action mit the question to the people, and the action of the people will be final. It seems to have been overlooked, that pursuant to the piedge of the party, this amendment passed the last Legislature, was advertised throughout the Legislature, was advertised throughout the Commonwealth, was made an issue at the late election as much as anything could be made an issue, and that the people did not find it necessary to change their political views because of the submission of that question, and that the Republican majority for President Harrison remained very much the same as the majority given for Mr. Blaine.

Senator Henninger, in an attempt to reply to Senator Cooper, charged that the parties who framed the submission resolution do not want it to pass, and are trying to make it

Senator Delamater-If the Senator be duly sworn or affirmed to do and perform the lieves this, why does he fear the resolution? Senator Henninger dodged the question, and inquired: "Why all this tampering with high license? Why the much-talked-about bill of the Senator from Delaware?" He objected to the part of the resolution for-bidding the manufacture of liquor as legislation against the laws of nature, as shown in the fermentation of wine.

THANK GOD FOR IT.

Senator Delamater said it was not necessary to add to the remarks of the Senator from Delaware, but he desired to say to the gentleman from Bucks that they were not here to enact prohibition, but to submit the question to the people. The Senator from Bucks intimated that the Democratic party might divide on the prohibition question, Mr. Delamater thought it providential if the Republican party could accomplish this. The Republican party was acting in good faith with the people, and if parties split on the question, thank God for it. A number of Democratic gentlemen went on record for the benefit of their constituents, but the only other Republican speaker was Senator MacFarlane, who, in answer to Mr. Henninger, said that the resolution had been prepared by one who had been a leader of prohibition thought in Pennsylvania for many years and who certainly knew what the Prohibitionits of the State wanted. He referred to ex-Chief Justice

Agnew, of Beaver. The vote on the amendment was-yeas, 32; nays, 2. All the Republican Senators voted for it with the exception of Messrs. Reyburn and Upperman, who voted against it, and Keefer and Taylor, who did not vote. The Democrats did not vote. Sloan, Demo-crat, of Indiana, and Betts, Democrat, of Clearfield, however, voted for it, because their constituents were in favor of it. As some opposition was manifesting itself to the passage of the amendment abolishing the poll tax, its consideration was postponed and made a special order for to-morrow immediately after the reading of the journal.

by offering everything, yes everything, at a price which will not only astound everybody but beat anything within the "recollection of the oldest inhabitant." We intend that our customers shall every day this week reap the richest harvest of bargains ever known. The reductions we have made are greater than anyone outside our store has any idea of; we have not marked down prices in solitary or isolated places, nor yet on any particular grades of goods, but wherever the eye can see, in every department, will be found reduced prices, reduced to such an extent that nothing whatever remains of anywhere near the original figures. If some sales are greater than others then this sale of ours is the greatest of 'em all. We've marked down every article and garment to a price which you'll wonder at, to a price which will cause everyone who ascertains them and finds out the quality of the goods offered to be astounded. We haven't a single thing in our store but what is a bargain greater even than you think. Now, if you want anything we offer and want it cheaper than you've any idea of come and see us as early as you can.
